VOLUME VIII.—NUMBER 52

END OF YEAR

Tonight Secretary Escott, of the Y. M. C. A. Will Be Re-elected.

ASSOCIATION PROSPEROUS

The Expenses for the Coming Year Will Be Fully Met By Subscriptions.

THE NEW GYMNASIUM WORK

Beginning Sunday, September 1, 1901 the local Y. M. C. A. will open a new year with the burden of debt lifted from its shoulders. The board of directors will meet tonight and make a call for a secretary for the new year and Mr. Escott, the present efficient secretary, will doubtless be re-elected.

The work for the winter will be mapped out and the association members intend to make the new year the best and most successful the association has ever known.

The financial committee has reported the test of success and there have been enough subscriptions made to cover all the debts of the association. Most of the subscriptions have been made payable after October and by January all the subscriptions will have been collected and the obligations of the association fully met.

Secretary Escott said this morning in speaking of the work for the winter and also other arrangements relative to the gymnasium and the management of the same. "The outlook for the educational work of the association is excellent and we will make it a feature of the work. Evening classes will be established and I think there will be no difficulty in arousing the necessary interest in the work to make it a decided success."

"This will be one of the departments to be discussed and mapped out at the meeting of the board tonight. The physical department will also be discussed and arrangements made for the fall and winter work in this department."

"We intend to have a Leader class, class to train the best pupils in athletics, to take charge of the classes and train the pupils. I will have charge of the Leader's class and think it will have a membership of about six. Mr. Roy Potter, the physical director during the past winter, will probably not return and I will take the position until some one else is secured."

"One of the features of the 'gym' that will be new in Paducah, is one, that has been long needed, a machine for testing the strength of the many different muscles or groups of muscles of the physical body. Dr. Sights and myself are getting the machine up and will probably have it finished by the middle of the next month. The idea was borrowed from another machine but some few improvements have been made and the machine will be a great help in the physical department as we can then tell the deficiencies in the muscular development of the pupils and then know what class of exercises for the pupil to take. All the measurements of the body can be taken with the machine and a chart of the pupils' physical development made out and given to him so that he might know what he is working for. The 'gym' is in good condition and we hope to arouse more interest in the work than has heretofore been manifested."

"We are also planning a more complete religious department and will have several new features added for the fall work, and hope to make it more successful than it has been the past year."

NO MONOPOLY.

ONLY ONE DAIRY IN THE COUNTRY SOLD, ACCORDING TO REPORTS.

There has been a report afloat to the effect that a certain well known gentleman of the city was attempting to buy all the dairies in the surrounding country and secure a monopoly. A Sun reporter investigated the report but found that only one dairy had been sold, and that as far as was known the gentleman who purchased the dairy had no desire to secure a monopoly of the milk supply of the city. Milk has declined slightly but the decline was not occasioned by any fear of the supply going to people other than those who now control it.

Dr. Hossig, the milk and meat inspector, says he thinks there is nothing in the report and that the decline in the price of milk is only natural as it is only a drop to the former price. The milkman had all agreed on it before the decline was made.

Lieutenant Moore has returned from the Conference, and reports a most enjoyable time.

CAUGHT AT LAST.

Roy Mallory Captured By Deputy Marshal La Rue.

He Had Been Dodging About for Several Months in Different States.

U. S. Deputy Marshal La Rue goes about his business in a very quiet but masterful manner. Several days ago he went to Louisville "to attend the conclave," which he did, but from subsequent happenings it has developed that he had other motives than to merely attend the Knight Templar celebration.

He slipped into the city night before last and yesterday morning went down the N. C. and St. L. railroad unknown to the majority of the citizens. He returned last night in company with Roy Mallory, who is charged with illicit whiskey dealings. The prisoner has been skipping around the country, first in Tennessee, then in Missouri and then to some other locality, always to evade the government officers who have been after him for the past several months. He was at last located near Farmington and Marshal La Rue stole a march on him yesterday and made the capture. Mallory probably thought he was in Louisville but soon learned his mistake. He will be taken to Hopkinsville tomorrow when the witnesses are produced, and tried before Commissioner Ferguson and if held over, which is very probable, will be returned to Paducah to await the action of the federal court at the next term in November.

A GHOST.

Causes a Man To Leave Home and Disappear.

Great Excitement in the Vicinity of Seventh and Jackson Streets.

A "ghost" caused the separation of Motorman George Keeney and his wife, and created little excitement in the vicinity of Seventh and Jackson streets. Last night at least a hundred people were there to witness the manifestations of the supposed apparition, which has thus far done no damage other than to rap on the doors and walls. The tapping was first heard by Mrs. Keeney on the night of the storm when the telephone was lost, and since that time had been heard many times but Monday and Tuesday night it became so bad that the neighbors were called in to help ferret out the mystery. The sound was low but distinct and sounded like some one knocking on the front door. When the front door was opened the knocking would then be heard at the back door and sometimes at the middle of the house, on a door entering into the dining room. Mrs. Keeney said that an examination had been made and that no loose boards could be found, and that no rats had been seen about the place. She says she thinks it was a warning or an omen of the bad luck which has now befallen her.

Yesterday afternoon her husband came off duty and retired for the afternoon as he was in the habit of doing. He got up late in the afternoon and kissed her several times, telling her how much he loved her, and, finally, taking his hat, he left saying that he wanted no supper. When night came he did not show up and Mrs. Keeney, becoming alarmed at his prolonged absence, started out in quest of him.

She boarded the Rowlandtown line, thinking he was on that run but found that he had not been to work. She then took the Trumbull street line and the motorman on that line informed her that Mr. Keeney had told him to give her a message but as he did not have the heart to send her word he thought it better to wait and deliver the message to her.

The house was surrounded by hundreds of curious persons last night who came to hear the sound and they raised such a disturbance that the police had to disperse them. Mrs. Keeney had all her household furnishing goods packed up and stored away and will leave the haunted house and return to her home in Princeton with her father, Mr. W. S. Allison, who was called to the city this morning by his daughter. The couple had been married one year, this October 19 and came here from Princeton.

It is thought that Keeney has gone to St. Louis and the cause of his strange actions can not be accounted for as he has never had any domestic trouble so far as it is known.

LABOR DAY

A Monster Barbecue To Be One of the Features of the Day.

COMMITTEES APPOINTED

Names of the Candidates for Goddess of Labor—Many Miners Coming.

BIGGEST CELEBRATION HERE

Every day the labor day workers add some new feature to the program. Already it is more complete than any ever before arranged and the celebrations will be remembered as the most successful in the history of Southwestern Kentucky.

The latest thing added is a big barbecue. The following meets will be procured and an expert master at the barbecue will have charge of the cooking.

Twenty-four dozen chickens, bacon, lamb, pork, beef, and other meats. There will be plenty to eat for everybody and there will be no occasion for anybody leaving the grounds for dinner or supper. The firemen at the Central department are busy today shining up the fire engines for the big parade. They intend to make a fine showing and will all have the sharpest razor creases in their trousers and the brightest flowers in the laps of their coats.

All the different trade unions are planning to get up the best appearance and the I. C. blacksmiths think they will "throw the other trades in the shade."

They will appear in their overalls, black shirts and caps each carrying his sledge.

The parade will be different from any other ever seen and all the trades men will be attired in dress corresponding to their vocation.

The Central body met last night to make final arrangements.

The following are the candidates for Goddess of Labor: Miss Maude Phelps, for the leather workers; Miss Sue Garvey, for the ship carpenters and Miss Nellie Farrow, for the painters.

The line of march will be: Jefferson and Ninth to Jackson; Jackson to Fifth; Fifth to Court, Court to First, First to Broadway, Broadway to Twelfth, Twelfth to Jefferson. There the parade will disband and the whites will go to La Belle park and the colored contingent to Eureka park for the day's exercises.

Grand Marshal Ed Person has appointed the following aids: Dick Woods, of the leatherworkers; Zack Bryant, of the clerks and James Mason, of the machinists.

Mr. Chas. Farrow writes that at least 1,200 miners will be here to participate and perhaps more. He is now at work in the mining district in the interest of the celebration.

The following merchants have agreed to close their stores at 10 a. m. Labor day: Wallerstein Bros., W. K. Poage, D. Deeserger, B. Weile and Sons, L. H. Ogilvie and Co., Boldry and Roberts, John Bleich, J. L. Wolff, Eley Dry Goods Co., G. D. Palmer, Geo. Rock and Son, E. Gethrich and Co., Wahl and Sons, H. Diehl and Sons, John J. Dorian, Dreyfuss and Bro., Geo. Bernhard, Geo. O. Hart and Son, Wm. Nagel, H. Runge, Lendler and Lydon, Rhodes Burford Co., F. H. Gardner and Co., Paducah Furniture Co., J. W. Gleaves and Son, E. H. Harbour, Hank Brown and Jones, M. E. Jones, John Doherty, T. Schwab, R. D. Phillips and Co., Cochran Shoe Co.

The following is floor committee for the dancing pavilion: Jim McManon, of the leatherworkers; Harry Green, of the Typographical Union; John Wallace, of the electricians; Sam Whitmer, of the machinists; V. T. Berry, of the railway car builders and George Magie, of the retail clerks; Jack Hobbs, of the retail clerks was appointed galler for the dances.

The tie sheet iron and metal workers also think they will make the best showing in the parade. They will wear red stove pipe hats, made of genuine stove pipe metal and will carry the umbrellas and the walking sticks.

There will be fewer tinsmiths than blacksmiths however, and this is where the blacksmiths are banking on taking the prize.

WILL SIZZLE.

THIS MAN BURNS AT THE STAKE FOR AN OUTRAGE.

Hooper, Mo., August 29.—Men have surrounded Bowdie Francis, the negro who outraged and murdered Miss Henerson, and will burn him at the stake.

It is thought that Keeney has gone to St. Louis and the cause of his strange actions can not be accounted for as he has never had any domestic trouble so far as it is known.

GREAT DISASTER.

Eleven Dead and Many Hurt at Philadelphia Last Night.

Boiler Exploded on the City of Trenton—Everyone Is Accounted For.

COMMITTEES APPOINTED

Names of the Candidates for Goddess of Labor—Many Miners Coming.

BIGGEST CELEBRATION HERE

Philadelphia, August 29.—Eleven are dead and none are missing as a result of the explosion on the City of Trenton yesterday, while thirty-two were seriously injured.

While the steamboat of the Wilmington Steamboat company, was on her way from this city to Trenton, N. J., her port boiler exploded.

After the explosion the boat took fire and ran aground. She now lies a wrecked and blackened hulk in the marshes opposite Tressel, sixteen miles above this city. Her hold is filled with water and it is feared more of her passengers and crew may be found in the bottom of the boat when the water is pumped out.

UNCONSTITUTIONAL

APPORTIONMENT.

The present constitution of Kentucky says the Louisville Commercial, which, by the way, is the fourth, adopted in 1891, provided in its 33d section as follows: "The first general assembly, after the adoption of this constitution, shall divide the state into 35 senatorial districts and 100 representative districts as nearly equal in population as may be without dividing any county, except where a county may include more than one district, which districts shall constitute the senatorial and representative districts for ten years. Not more than two counties shall be joined together to form a representative district. Provided, in doing so, the principle requiring every district to be as nearly equal in population as may be, shall not be violated. At the expiration of that time the general assembly shall then, and every ten years thereafter, redistrict the state according to this rule, and for the purpose expressed in this section. If in making such districts inequality of population should be unavoidable, any advantage resulting therefrom shall be given to districts having the larger territory."

This last phrase evidently means that a sparse population, extending over a large territory should be held equivalent to a large population on a smaller territory.

In 1893, under this new constitution, a new apportionment was made,
and its variations from constitutional requirements are remarkable.

For instance, in the senatorial districts, Henry, Oldham, Carroll and Trimble, constituted the Twenty-first senatorial district, with a population, according to the census of 1890, of 39,321, while to make the Seventeenthousandth district Bell, Knox, Laurel, Jackson, Pulaski, Rockcastle and Whitley, with a territory three times as large and a population of 99,944, according to the same census, were put together. That arrangement violated plainly two provisions of the constitution.

So in regard to representative districts. The constitution says not more than two counties shall be joined to make a representative district, and yet the ninety-third district, by the act of 1893, was made to embrace the counties of Bell, Liaran, Leslie and Perry, with 26,604 population and a territory almost equal to the Seventh congressional district, while the little counties of Liaran, with 9,443 population, and Meade, with 9,481 population, and McLean, with 9,887 population, were each made representative districts. According to the constitution, making allowances for population and territory, Harlan, Leslie, Bell and Perry ought to have had more representatives than those three counties, and yet, by the act of 1893, they had only one to the three from the other smaller counties.

If a case had been made against the apportionment act of 1893 before the court of appeals, even as then constituted, the Commercial believes it would have been declared unconstitutional, as a similar act was declared unconstitutional by the supreme court of Indiana.

Paducah is behind many cities in the state in the matter of having county fairs. Whether these fairs are successful or not, they continue to be given all over the state every fall, and people regard it as matter of wonder that Paducah never has one. There is ample population in this section to pay the expenses of one, and there have been in the past many opportunities to support a fair association, but somehow one has never been a success. The obvious cause is that one has never been managed right, and if a fair, arranged on modern lines, and conducted on a liberal, but not too liberal plan, were attempted, there is no reason why it should not be a success. The old time fair may be out of date, but it is a "thing of beauty and a joy forever" to enough people still to warrant its success if properly managed. Paducah is large enough to have horse racing, stock exhibitions and other things that other cities in the state have, and the fact that she does not should prove sufficient incentive to the people to co-operate in any move to provide them. Paducah might have a fair every year just to sustain her reputation and keep up appearances, if for no other reason.

Councilman James Wallie's position on the reconstruction of the pavements on Broadway is well taken, in the opinion of a great many people, but Mayor Lang claims it is impossible. Councilman Wallie thinks that Paducah is so large she should have her pavements on Broadway, at least below Ninth, constructed of concrete. This is perhaps an excellent idea, and Mayor Lang agrees that the pavements should be of concrete, if possible, but contends that as Paducah will at some future time have storm water sewerage on Broadway, this would necessitate the tearing up of the concrete sidewalks, and entail no little loss to those citizens who had paid to have them put down. But if the pavements are to be rebuilt, they ought to be made in keeping with the importance of the city, and the locality in which they are reconstructed. Storm water sewerage is not a certainty for any time. If it is built, it may not be for years, and concrete does not last forever. It seems that the consensus of opinion is in favor of the best possible pavements in the business part of town. The storm water sewerage may be considered later on, if it is ever considered at all.

Mrs. Eugenia M. Jones now has charge of the Free Press, at Columbus, Ohio, and will run it on a unique plan. All the employees are to share in an equal distribution of half the profits, which is to be made on Christmas and the Fourth of July. Conditions of employment are "that intemperance among editors and employees shall not be countenanced; that every editor and proof-reader shall have a college education, and that no business of any sort shall be transacted with any individual, firm or corporation without recognized financial standing." The last provision is directed against those labor unions that are not incorporated, have no financial standing, and are not responsible for the business of a concern.

If men are anything like silkworms, the following may have some bearing on the future perpetuation of species. Experiments made with silkworms tended to show that those kept under dark colored glass are less than those kept under light colored glass, and also that under the darker glass the percentage of males produced was greater than under light glass. M. Flannigan thinks that his experiments coincide with the theory that a preponderance of male births occur when there is a diminution in the quantity and quality of nourishment, supposing that sex can be influenced by external circumstances at all.

A temperance fanatic learned up in Zanesville, Ohio, the other day, that speech is not as free as some people might suppose, and further, that some saloon keepers stand well in their communities. He made violent personal attacks on several of the saloon men in a serious, thumping person that his calling would insure him against violence, but he was summarily treated to a healthy shower of decayed hen fruit, of stones and sticks, and if the police had not arrived he believed would have made a first class subject for an autopsy. The moral is that there is a limit to everything, even free speech.

It will be no surprise. Mrs. Carrie Nation has appeared in Zanesville. This was about the only thing she hadn't done to startle the natives. She hired herself out in Philadelphia to open a saloon there, the other day and made out of her characteristic tirades against saloons. The mayor of the city declined to see her, but a lot of mutinous heads hung around the hotel all day trying to get a free look at her, when a peep at the amateur is worth as much as a nickel or dime to anyone. It is announced that Mrs. Nation's Zanesville engagement was only temporary.

The supreme court of the District of Columbia has decided that the "sweat meat" had no claim to territory in the tract recently ceded by the Klows and other tribes. They sued the secretary of the interior claiming right to allotments, and asked a mandamus, but the court sustained the secretary, and said that the exercise of discretion was essential in opening such lands for settlement, and that he did not deem it wise to interfere with such a privilege by an executive order.

Those who have long rested in the belief that hell was a myth will be disappointed to learn that an Indiana Bible conference has decided otherwise. At the conclusion of a ten days' session the other day a conference was called, the subject discussed thoroughly, and the unanimous decision was that there is a hell, and that future punishment should be more extensively preached than it was in the olden times. Thus are our fondest delusions dispelled.

The opening of the Kentucky promises to be the most brilliant social event of the year, and in addition to the hundreds of Paducahans who will attend, there will be fair visitors from many of the surrounding cities. The opening, being a benefit performance, should be, and no doubt will be,
liberally patronized, and a better, higher or more up-to-date attraction, than "The Burgomaster," could not have been secured for the auspicious festival.

made for a marriage license. Couples

THE PERFECTION OF

DISINFECTION.

In an interesting paper in the September number of Frank Leslie's Popular monthly on "How Yellow Fever is Fought," the writer describes the remarkable precaution taken at the port of New Orleans.

When the vessel has tied up to the wharf the first step is the removal of the bedding, clothing and cushions and other cloth fabrics to the quarantine shed. Here they are hung on a framework consisting of a series of racks suspended from a long car running on a track and so arranged that when the racks are filled the whole thing may be run inside one of the three great disinfecting cylinders with which the station is equipped.

These cylinders are enormous steel holders, fifty feet in length by eight feet in diameter and fitted inside with continuous coils of steam pipe.
The cylinders are covered with asbestos and swathed in felt, and when the cylinder caps are on they are air tight. When the clothing has been placed inside and the cylinders closed dry heat is forced through the pipes at a temperature of 160 degrees, and this is followed by moist heat raised to a temperature of 220 degrees. The pressure of from six to eight pounds put upon this steam heat is sufficient to force it through heavy mattresses or bundles of clothing.

After a period which varies from thirty minutes to an hour the cylinders are opened, the racks are run out and the rapid evaporation which follows, causes the clothing to dry almost immediately. The clothing is submersed by this process and the moist heat is a thorough germicidal agent. It is an interesting fact that if a freshly laundered linen shirt or collar is put into the cylinder it will emerge thoroughly moist and apparently in need of another starching.
The evaporation is rapid, however, that it is immediately restored to its original condition, not even the gloss being removed.

farmer, he found him excitedly chewing his quid. The shots, nearly spent, had struck him in the side of the face, both loads hitting him, but
not hard enough to draw blood.

Mayor Lang was very much relieved, but could not convince the farmer that he didn't shoot him on purpose, because he is the only Republican in that section and the mayor is a Democrat.

He continued to punctuate his remarks with very impressive profanity, but the mayor did not at all mind the harm name he called him. When he finally stood before the wrathful
farmer, he found him excitedly chewing
his quid. The shots, nearly
spent, had struck him in the side of
the face, both loads hitting him, but
not hard enough to draw blood.

BENT ON MURDER

Jim Spriggs Was Attacked By Mother of the Dead Girl.

SHE CHOKED HIM

Officers Finally Released Her—Some Little Excitement Resulted.

TRIAL FOR MURDER BEGINS

When she fell he walked away.

The other witnesses examined were Eliza Rogers, mother of the girl, Irene Davis, and Lucy Schanfner, all colored. The latter's evidence was about as damaging as could have been found.
